Over 100 years of boxing is depicted by artists working in paint, graphite, bronze and photography. Photographers capture boxing as anatomy studies as well as a form of exercise during the First World War. Lithographers and photographers illustrate scenes of professional boxing. Sculptors immortalize pugilists in bronze. And contemporary artists explore the sport's defining qualities of endurance, discipline, pain, and self-discovery. Archival and contemporary images along with original texts by sports professionals reveal the mystical nature of what boxing insiders call The Sweet Science. With work by George Bellows, Pete Doherty, Clinton Griffin, Kristin Horton, Tom Lovatt, Kathleen Munn, John J. A. Murphy, Eadweard Muybridge, Ernst Neumann, John Reeves, Harold Town, and Coral Short.
